A Thread In the Woof.

By WALLACE SNOW.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Pietro Vincenzo Riga was discouraged. It had been a bad day. In fact, it had been a bad month. Generally when he and Gambietta took to the road and traveled through this section the nickels and dimes and quarters fell into Pietro's old felt hat in a most alluring stream.

But this year the weather had been for the most part rainy, and somehow Gambietta seemingly had lost his knack of coaxing coins from stubborn pockets.

What few pleasant days there had been had proved far from profitable, for the dimes and nickels and quarters were conspicuous by their absence, and Pietro and Gambietta must both eat, fair weather or dull.

In vain did they plod the dusty highways; in vain whenever they could find a possible audience did Gambietta try his combersome tricks.

Waltz, turn somersaults, die, go lame, wrestle with Pietro as he would, but a few scattered pennies had lodged in the old felt hat. Bankruptcy, grim and ghastly, stared them in the face.

Moreover, Gambietta was growing painfully thin, even as if he had but recently come from one of his long naps of hibernation, and Pietro was beginning to learn all too frequently that a handful of berries gathered from the roadside made a most unsatisfactory repast.

They plodded up the long hill slope, the man shuffling along with his shoulders stooped and his head bent and the bear following along at the end of his chain, his head rolling from side to side and his scuffling feet sending up choking clouds of dust that set him to wheezing and coughing in miserable fashion.

They were nearing the top of the hill when a wagon with a portly, well fed man on the seat drew up beside them. The well fed man glared at them in undisguised contempt.

"Hey, you dago," he called, "what yer doin' with that bear here on the highway? Don't you know there's a regulation against it in this town? Scares horses, it does! Take him through the woods or the fields, but keep off the roads—you hear?"

Pietro pulled off the old felt hat and bowed respectfully. Then as best he could in broken English, plentifully interspersed with Etruscan dialect, he tried to make it plain that neither he nor Gambietta would willingly or knowingly transgress the law.

The man in the wagon understood no word of the servile harangue.

"None of your lip, now," he interrupted irritably, at the same time pulling open his coat to display a tin star. "I'm a deputy sheriff, I am. You and that bear keep off the roads or I'll run you both in. See?"

He waved his arm meaningly toward a little wooded path that led from the highway to the left and sat in his wagon watching the sorry pair until they had turned into it and were lost to view in its shady depths.

Beneath a giant oak tree that stood beside the little path Pietro sat down miserably, his head in his hands and a great despair in his tired eyes.

Gambietta collapsed beside him, rolled about luxuriously for a moment, then, then on his side and went calmly to sleep.

Pietro sat there for a time, a prey to his bitter musing. Then he, too, stretched himself beside Gambietta's rusty brown bulk and fell into troubled slumber.

Now, it happened that the path—a winding wood road—which the two had chosen, or, rather, which the well fed man had chosen for them, as a retreat led to a cascade, where a little stream fell over a series of granite ledges.

It was one of the beauty spots of the vicinity, a place much frequented by the summer people who came to the little town.

Even as Pietro and Gambietta slept in the shadows of the oak a smart trap came slowly down the winding road from the cascade.

In the trap were a stern faced young man and an unsmiling young woman. And it took no very great intellect to see that everything was not entirely pleasant between them.

Indeed, they had fallen into silence—that bitter silence which is harder to endure than threats or recriminations or open censure. For some time they drove along, the beauties of the shaded wood road lost to their eyes.

The man finally broke the silence. "Perhaps it would be better if I got out and walked," he suggested grimly.

"Perhaps it would," said the girl, and, reining in the horse, she watched him climb down from the trap, after which she flicked the cob with the whip, and the trap sped down the road.

The man stuffed his hands into his pockets, grunted something inarticulate and strode on in her wake. He was a pleasant looking young man. The frown that furrowed his forehead seemed sadly out of place.

But there was something about the mouth which said he had a will of his own and somewhat more than his share of stubborn pride.

Presently, by way of soothing his overwrought nerves, he pulled from his pocket a well worn briar pipe and began to fill it from his tobacco pouch.

But scarcely was the task completed when from ahead there arose a sudden commotion, a cracking of underbrush, a jabbering of Etruscan dialect.

A half smothered feminine scream, sounded through the stillness.

The young man pricked up his ears, and as the scream sounded once more he dropped his pipe and tore down the path at a pace that had won him records on the chondr path.

Around a bend in the path he sped, and there before him he saw a frantically plunging horse, an Etruscan wringing his hand and jabbering helplessly, while a badly frightened bear crawled through the underbrush with many whoops of genuine alarm.

The young man jumped for the bit, caught it and clung on desperately.

The horse, thoroughly frightened, snorted and plunged and acted generally like a beast bereft of his senses.

With all his strength he strove to free himself from the young man's grasp, but that stubborn will was equal to the emergency. Men with mouths like the young man's don't let go once they have gained a hold.

For several minutes it was a battle royal for mastery; then the young man's strength and agility and spirit prevailed.

The horse, quivering and panting, came down on all fours and stood there, shaking like a leaf.

"You had best get out for a moment or two," the young man advised, and the girl meekly obeyed.

Then she saw his torn coat and blood on his wrist where the prongs of the bit had torn the flesh.

"Tom," she cried, quite forgetting the recent unpleasantness—"Tom, dear, are you hurt? There's blood on your hand, and you're all mused up."

He smiled reassuringly. "Not in the least, dearie," said he. Then he looked steadily into her eyes. "But I'd be glad to be if I—"

"If what?" she asked rather breathlessly.

"If I could make you understand what an ass I feel myself to be and how sorry I am I quarreled with you."

The young woman had her share of common sense. "Well, I rather think we can forgive each other without anything so unnecessary as that," said she. "It was my fault anyway."

"I rather think it was mine," he declared.

At that moment Pietro Vincenzo Riga, overcome with premonitory fears, approached, nearly touching the ground with his forehead, so low were his bows. His gestures were rapid and expressive, his face a picture of woe.

"Not a my fault! Not a my fault!" he repeated over and over, his palms upturned in deprecation.

The young man turned. "Your fault?" he laughed. "Not a bit of it, my friend. In fact, it's the most fortunate circumstance in the world that you happened along just as you did. Here!" And into the astounded Etruscan's hand he thrust a crisp ten dollar bill.

Pietro stood staring at it stupidly, scarce daring to believe his good fortune, while the young man helped the girl back to the trap.

It was only when the trap started on that Pietro realized he was taking something and giving nothing in return.

"Wait!" he cried, diving into the bushes for the recalcitrant Gambietta.

"Wait! Make a bear dance—a waltz!"

"Oh, that's all right," the young man laughed. "You've earned the money!"

The trap whisked down the path. Pietro hauled the bear from the underbrush and made him stand at his clumsy salute.

His own tattered felt hat was clasped in his hand as he watched the two young people, sitting close together and both talking at once, drive out of sight. Then he and Gambietta set forth at a somewhat livelier pace in search of supper.

Recognized Likeness.

A Parisian dandy of the first water, the Comte de S., had a crayon picture of himself made, which he afterward presented to the curious public.

"It does not bear the slightest resemblance to me," he said, "and I will not take it."

The artist protested, but all to no avail. "All right, monsieur," he remarked finally, "if it is not at all like you, of course I can't reasonably expect to get paid for it."

After the count had left the painter added to the portrait a magnificent pair of ears and exhibited it to the gaze of the curious public.

It had not been long so exposed when the count broke into the artist's studio in a towering rage, and finding that threats availed him nothing, at last offered to buy it at a considerable advance upon the original price.

"It was not strange that you failed to recognize your resemblance to the picture at first," said the painter, determined to be revenged for the slight put upon his work. "But I knew you would notice the likeness as soon as I added these ears."

Society at Caracas.

The ladies of the government were the most gorgeous of tropical butterflies. They were all the colors at the same time and jewels in profusion, but you seldom looked farther than the paint and powder. I had seen a dark girl in Porto Rico powdered until she looked like a mink, but she was at rest! These gaudy pinkish, Spanish-Indian, Spanish-negro creatures were plinked and scarletted and whitened on face, throat and neck until the original color appeared only on the upper arms, and after they had danced for an hour one thought of the Delta of the Mississippi in the old green geography! And so we all danced, painted and unpainted alike, and only the unbelievable represent described in the next morning's paper can give an adequate conception of what the Caraqueñas thought of it.—Albion.

A Spanish War Criticism.

When the Spanish war came upon us Commodore Dewey was at Hongkong. The navy department had sent him no preliminary orders. He didn't know anything about the ultimate policy or what the ultimate plan of campaign would be. The navy department didn't itself know. Dewey should have moved two or three days sooner than he did, and two or three days sometimes are vital. But our Washington officials were only aroused to the necessity of giving Admiral Dewey an order by a cablegram from Dewey informing them that the British governor of Hongkong insisted that our fleet must leave there. We were so dazed by the immediate exigencies of war that the English government had to prod us in the ribs to wake us up. Then our Washington authorities issued an order and not till then. They told Dewey to proceed to the Philippine Islands and capture or destroy the Spanish fleet. In other words, they gave him the stereotyped war order in the phraseology of the signal code, which, literally translated, read: "Go ahead and do the best you can. We give it up."—Collier's.

The Silver Thread.

A matron in Harlem was calling upon another matron in Harlem. Neither was young, but one looked more so.

"Really, my dear," said the one that looked more so, "you ought to have your hair treated. It's becoming quite gray in spots. See what a difference it has made with me. You would look much younger—really."

"But I don't care to look much younger if I must dye my hair to do so," was the reply. "I prefer to be natural. If the Lord sends me gray hair there's a good reason, and I'm satisfied."

"But think of your children, my dear. They're grown up now."

"What have they got to do with it?"

"Why, don't you see? The younger you look the younger it makes them appear. And your girls are way past twenty, you know."

The matron who was gray in spots was still looking dazed when her visitor departed.—New York Globe.

Costly Law Robes.

An English judge's outfit in the way of robes imposes a heavy tax upon the newly appointed judge, although the cost is not nearly so great as it was in the early days of Queen Victoria. Then it was the custom for the law luminaries to attend court functions in figured damask silk gowns, with costly lace bands and ruffles. Thesiger, a celebrated legal dignitary of that day, is said on one occasion to have spent £100 on bands alone. The lord chancellor's robes cost something like £150, and even a judge's stockings are an expensive item. The wardrobe of a judge costs anything from £500 to £600, and if the newly dedged "my lord" is attached to the king's bench division he will require five gowns, a girdle, a scarf, a casting hood, a black cap, a three cornered cap, a beaver hat, a cocked hat, a silk hat, lace bands and two full court suits, swords, etc., to keep up the majesty of the law.—London Globe.

What They Said.

"Did the girls say anything when they heard of my engagement?" she asked, with a little curiosity.

"Very little," was the reply of her dearest friend.

"But they said something?"

"Oh, yes; they said something."

"Well, what was it?"

"Well, most of them merely exclaimed, 'At last!'"

"There was a pause, and then she asked:

"Well, what did some of the others say?"

"One of them said, 'Who'd have thought it?' Another, 'Will wonders never cease?' And a third—"

"Oh, never mind the rest," interrupted the fiancée. "I never did have much curiosity."

Was He Delirious?

"Almost every man," says a Baltimore specialist, "learns sooner or later to think of his doctor as one of his best friends, but this fact does not hinder the world from laughing at the profession."

"How is our patient this morning?" asked a physician, a fellow graduate of mine, of a patient's brother.

"Oh, he's much worse," came from the other in a tone of dejection. "He's been delirious for several hours. At 3 o'clock, he said, 'What an old woman that doctor of mine is!' and he hasn't made a rational remark since."—Lippincott's.

A Rising Fall.

A certain member of the British government who was admittedly a great failure was being discussed by two of his colleagues.

"And now," concluded one, "they want to make him a peer!"

"No," said the other, with greater acumen; "they want to make him disappear."

Taking Chances.

Not So Exacting.

"So you're a butcher now?"

"Yes," explained the former dry goods clerk. "The ladies don't try to match sparranils or steak."—Kansas City Journal.

Tell Me Not In Mournful Numbers.

THE biased reports of the San Francisco press in regard to the principals in the graft prosecution keeps the public guessing, but while the people guess they laugh at the evident distortion of facts to fit sentiment. For instance, upon the return of Mr. Heney from the East one paper reported a vast concourse at the public reception given in his honor at the Ferry building. A rival journal deplored the small assemblage which came out to meet the chief prosecutor. If you were not there yourself how many people do you imagine were there? If you read one paper you thought you had an idea, but upon reading them all you discovered you were uncertain as to just what sized audience Mr. Heney had.

That this kind of bias colors newspaper reports is well illustrated in "Judge," which suggests the following scale when there is not time or disposition to ascertain the exact numbers present. If favorable to the gathering the press may use this approximation:

- Over 3, but less than 10—a crowd.
- Over 10, but less than 20—scores.
- Over 20, but less than 50—a myriad.
- Over 50, but less than 100—thousands.
- Over 100—a vast concourse.

This list would undergo a radical change, however, in case the newspaper was reporting a political meeting of its opponents. It might then be abridged:

- 100 or more—empty house.
- 300 or more—a few stragglers.
- 500 or more—a lonely gathering.
- 1000 or more—a small audience.
- 3000 or more—only the front seats filled.

A Candid Admission

Our erratic contemporary, the "Expositor," has this to say of itself in its last issue. We copy the squib verbatim et literatim:

"Gradually Dying.—Some old style, old fashioned, crooked and disreputable county weekly newspapers we know of will eventually die a natural death and it will be a Godsend to the community when they do. Nobody would buy them as they are not worth having as a gift. The editors hang on to them because they can't get rid of them. They are like the dog that adopted a man."

Now, this was a mighty mean admission on the Expositor man's part on the eve his retiring and "passing the buck" to a "New-man," wasn't it?

THERE is a persistent rumor going the rounds that, following the example of the three leading merchants of the municipality, the other business men will also refuse to pay the city's license tax when the collector calls around again. If this be true, where is the revenue to come from for the plaza, streets, electric lights and other necessary public improvements. This attempt on the part of the three richest merchants of Sonoma to balk the City Trustees in their efforts to give its people needed improvements is about the silliest piece of business on the part of men claiming to be public-spirited we ever heard of.

Oh, you old sun! why don't you smile on us mortals once again. Out of the 30 days in January to date Jupiter Pluvius has soaked us with 27 rainy days while Old Sol has beamed down on us but three.

INDIGESTION IS ENDED FOREVER.

Misery From an Upset Stomach Vanishes Five Minutes

Later.

Why not start now—today, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapiesin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache or dizziness, and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors. Pape's Diapiesin costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate case of indigestion and upset stomach in five minutes. There is nothing else better to take gas from stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and besides, one triangle will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Diapiesin works, your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table and what you eat will do you good. Absolute relief from all stomach misery is waiting for you as soon as you decide to begin taking Diapiesin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapiesin, because you want to be thoroughly cured of indigestion.

Uncle Tom's Cabin Coming

Stetson's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," is the title of a really big company which, under the personal management of Mr. Leon Washburn, whose name has been long and favorably associated with up-to-date amusements, is to appear at Union Hall, Sonoma, on Friday evening, Feb. 5th. The company comprises twenty people, including a dozen specialty artists, two quartettes, a superb orchestra, and many colored comedians, who add to the big production not a little by their spontaneous wit and clever singing and dancing. Watch for the parade at 4 p. m. Secure your reserved seats early at Simmons'. Price 50c.

A Most Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts from native medicinal roots and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherrybark, Bloodroot, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchitis, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe, obstinate, chronic coughs, bronchitis, and hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering hang-on coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures.

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago, says of glycerine: "In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. Holding a fixed quantity of the poxide of hydrogen in solution, it is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon the stomach. It is especially useful if there is ulceration or catarrhal gastritis (catarrhal inflammation of stomach), it is a most efficient preparation. Glycerine will relieve many cases of proctitis (inflammation of the rectum), hemorrhoids, and excessive gastric acidity. "Golden Medical Discovery" enriches and purifies the blood, curing blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings and old sores, or ulcers. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet telling all about the medicinal properties of this wonderful medicine. There is no alcohol in it."

WEEKLY RESUME OF CONDENSATIONS.

The Board of City Trustees will hold their February meeting next Wednesday evening.

Now is the time to lay concrete sidewalks. See Trudgen, the stone mason, about it.

The second installment of city taxes must be paid Monday to avoid delinquency.

State Senator Walter L. Price has placed us under obligations this week for public documents.

Stove wood is selling here for $6.50 per cord. For years it sold for $5, but advanced to present rate last winter.

The warm rains the past month have covered the valley and surrounding mountains in a bright carpet of green.

Sam Lewis, an aged man, who was well known in this place, died in the county hospital, Santa Rosa, last Saturday.

Eph. Weiss, the expert refractionist and optician of San Francisco, will be in Sonoma at the Union Hotel, February 24.

Thursday was the first sunny day in this valley for January and it was a godsend to our people, who had about d-spaired of ever seeing Old Sol again.

J. Frey, the engineer of the Foster quarries at Sears' Point, who has been under treatment here for burns received while firing up his engine, has returned to his duties.

The remains of Nelson S. Trowbridge, who died here Saturday, were cremated in Oakland last Monday. The deceased, who was 63 years of age, was the father of Mrs. George O. Cobb of Glen Ellen, where he lived previous to coming here a few months ago.

Col. Sawyer's great pack of genuine Siberian bloodhounds are beyond question the finest lot of canines of that strain ever found in this country. They are somewhat larger than our Rocky Mountain lions and much more strongly made, but when aroused or on a trail, have all the fleetness and activity of those animals. These famous hounds are touring with Stetson's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Company this season, and will appear at Union Hall on Friday evening, Feb. 5th, when this great organization appars here. Watch for the parade at 4 p. m. Secure your reserved seats early at Simmons'. Price 50c.

The Great Stock Reduction Sale at Racket Store

TWO YEARS IN STATE PRISON FOR LIA.

Attorney Mathewson Files Notice of Appeal to Higher Court.

Luigi Lia, convicted of assault with a deadly weapon in Judge Seawell's department of the Superior Court, on Thursday of last week, was sentenced Monday to serve two years in the State's prison at Folsom.

Attorney H. P. Mathewson, of counsel for the defense, then gave notice that he would take an appeal to the higher court, and at request of counsel the court reporter was instructed to write up the testimony adduced at the trial.

Pending the appeal, the convicted man has been taken to Folsom to commence his sentence, which by good behavior on his part will be cut down from two years to twenty months, in case he is not successful in his appeal for a new trial.

Had Lia not made many conflicting statements to the District Attorney, he would have been acquitted, and only the arduous efforts and brilliant arguments of his counsel prevented the sentence from being fourteen years instead of two years. Lia was fortunate in having the services of such able attorneys as H. P. Mathewson and Guy R. Kennedy, and can thank them for saving him twelve years additional time in prison.

The Santa Rosa Republican, in commenting upon Lia's conviction and sentence, in its Monday's issue, confounds the case with an attempted assassination near Glen Ellen a few months ago. After Rigoni had been cut in his encounter with Lia, he was taken to the Leix sanitarium in this place, and not to the county hospital, as stated by our misinformed contemporary. It is true, as stated by the Republican, that Rigoni lingered in the shadows for many days, but Dr. Leix's surgical skill saved the man's life as did County Physician Bogle's wonderful operation in the case of Pucci, who was shot in the head near Chauvet's winery last fall by an unseen foe.

The Odd Fellows Install Officers.

Deputy Sheriff Fennell is Recovering.

Deputy Sheriff John P. Fennell of San Francisco, who was shot in the head some time ago while trying to quell a disturbance on the streets of the metropolis is said to be recovering from the effects of the wound. The bullet struck the officer directly over the left eye, but providentially did not penetrate the skull. He was supposed at the time to have been fatally wounded but a good constitution enabled the doctors to pull him through. Mr. Fennell, who is well-known here, is a brother-in-law of Mrs. Taylor, owner of the old Perkins place in the western suburbs of town.

DIABOLICAL ATTEMPT TO KILL WITH AX.

A Vicious Wood-Chopper Inflicts Wound on Bank Mate that May be Fatal.

There was a frightful and sanguinary encounter on J. K. Bigelow's mountain ranch, in Agua Caliente creek canyon, two miles north of town, on last Tuesday evening, which may cost Patrick J. Malone his life and send John Riley to the gallows. The latter contingency depends, in a great measure, upon the surgical skill of Dr. Leix and his assistants in the Leix sanitarium, where the victim of one of the most brutal and murderous assaults ever committed in this valley now lies in a critical condition.

The principals in this sanguinary affray are three wood-choppers—an ax-wielder, the victim and the man who rushed to his rescue. The men had been in the employ of Bigelow about two months and are comparative strangers here.

Tuesday about dusk, Riley and Malone became involved in a dispute over some blankets, when the former, who had been drinking more or less during the day, suddenly became transformed into a blood-thirsty demon, and seizing a sharp ax which stood in the corner of the bunk-house, and swinging it with great force, essayed to decapitate Malone with a single blow. His aim was a little too low, however, and the sharp blade of the ax struck his victim on the collar-bone and glancing downward inflicted a gash across Malone's chest nine inches long and penetrating to the bone.

Malone, dropped to the floor, and with uplifted ax Riley stood over him ready to strike again when J. Gonzalez, a fellow woodchopper, rushed to the rescue of his prostrate companion, and seizing Riley disarmed him.

Gonzalez then assisted the wounded man to his feet and half dragging and half carrying him made his way to the Bigelow ranch in the valley, a distance of a mile and a half. Here the injured man, who by this time was nearly dead from loss of blood, was placed in an automobile and rushed to the Leix sanitarium in this place.

When placed upon the operating table the wounded man's pulse was all but gone, but soon responded to stimulants. Dr. Leix, upon examining the cut found it to extend directly over the heart clear across the chest and over the right lung, and it required sixteen stitches to close the gaping wound, the result of which will take several days to determine.

When news reached Deputy Sheriff Joe Ryan of the affray he went to the upper Bigelow ranch to arrest Riley, but he had fled. The officer, continued the search and traced him man to an empty box car at El Verano station, took him into custody, brought him into town and placed him in the lock-up.

District Attorney Lea came down from Santa Rosa the following afternoon and had Riley taken before Judge Small, who committed him to the Santa Rosa jail pending the outcome of Malone's wound.

Burned With Sulphuric Acid.

Mr. J. Kenyer, cellarman at Rhinefarm for the Gundlach-Bundschu Wine Company, met with a painful accident last Monday by the explosion of a bottle of sulphuric acid (vitriol). The burning fluid was scattered over his clothes and a quantity struck him on the nose and right side of the face, inflicting painful burns. Fortunately the fluid did not destroy the eyesight. Dr. Leix, who was called to treat the sufferer, reports his patient as doing nicely.

WARM AND DRY TO STAY WELL.

Advice of a Noted Authority, Also Gives a Simple Prescription.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patent medicine manufacturers reap the harvest, unless great care is taken to dress warmly and keep the feet dry. This is the advice of an old eminent authority who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Just try this simple home-made mixture at the first sign of Rheumatism, or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting just right. This is said to be a splendid kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Anyone can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity, when shown the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if our readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

Impossible to be Well

It is impossible to be well, simply impossible, if the bowels are constipated. You must pay attention to the laws of nature, or suffer the consequences. Undigested material, waste products, poisonous substances, must be removed from the body at least once each day, or there will be trouble. A sluggish liver is responsible for an immense amount of suffering and serious disease. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Pills. He knows why they act directly on the liver. Trust him. J. C.
